SAILING TO THE SPANISH SUN with Fred. Olsen Cruise Lines

ROL NEWS:
DECEMBER 2016

Francesca Hayden and Poppy Tompkins from our Marketing Department were lucky enough to experience traditional British cruising with Fred. Olsen Cruise Lines. Here's how they got on under the Spanish sun...

"Our cruise experience began before we even boarded the ship, with a singer performing swing music in the cruise lounge for guests to enjoy as we waited to check in. As soon as we boarded the ship, the service and attentiveness of the staff was second-to-none and we were soon welcomed to our room by our cabin stewardess with a smile.

Time flies when you're having fun, and it was soon time for dinner. As we entered the Ballindalloch Restaurant, no waiting or queuing was to be seen, just attentive waiters ready to ensure we were taken care of throughout our meal. The five course à la carte menu offered something for everyone, and as the food was brought to our tables it is safe to say that it was worth the wait, and more than surpassed our expectations.

The next day we enjoyed a traditional Afternoon Tea. This was waiting for us in The Observatory Lounge and the white-gloved service was truly exceptional. Dainty sandwiches, delectable cakes and fresh cream scones combined with a selection of teas was the perfect way to spend the afternoon.

That evening we made our way to the Neptune Lounge for the evening show, '21st Century Swing', presented to us by The Balmoral Show Company. The performers were West End-worthy and it was absolutely fantastic with all guests leaving on a high.

Our first port of call was La Coruña and our excursion today was a Segway tour. After both being a little nervous at first, we soon had the hang of it! This is highly recommended as a fun way to see all that the city has to offer including Torre de Hércules, the Paseo Marítimo and the statue of Maria Pita.

Our next port of call was Vigo and today we headed off for our second excursion to the Thermal Springs of Mondariz. With a choice of Jacuzzis, saunas and steam rooms, it's safe to say that we were well and truly relaxed by the time that complimentary refreshments were served in the spa's hotel.

Back on board, we began getting ready for a part of the trip we had both been looking forward to, a speciality dining experience in The Grill.

The menu was a truly fancy affair with both lobster and a wide range of steak options available. The three course meal was divine and of the highest standard, each delicious dish simply melted in your mouth!

The next day we were able to experience Balmoral's wonderful amenities and were soon looking forward to our Indian themed dinner in the Palms Café, an open-seated restaurant with a self-service buffet and with such delicious dishes on offer it was hard to know when to stop! But knowing that we had a post-dinner show to attend in the Neptune Lounge encouraged us not to have 'just one more plate'.

The show tonight from The Balmoral Show Company was themed 'Best of British' and highlighted British music through the decades. With our British flags in hands and drinks flowing, it was by far the best show of our trip.

As the next day dawned, we were sad to be leaving Balmoral – she provided us with exquisite service, fun experiences, beautiful scenery and out-of-this-world cuisine. All of this is why Fred. Olsen are experts in bringing the world closer to you on board their intimate ships, whilst still managing to make you feel at home, sweet home."

THE NO-FLY FJORDS OF NORWAY

15 NIGHTS DEPARTING 17TH JULY 2018

- Thu 19 Haugesund, Norway
- Fri 20 Flåm, Norway (am)
Gudvangen, Norway (pm)
- Sat 21 Ålesund, Norway
The coastal town of Ålesund is the commercial capital of the More og Romsdal district. But more importantly, it is noted for its characteristic Art Nouveau buildings, which some claim make Ålesund one of the most beautiful towns in Norway
- Sun 22 Bronnoysund, Norway (arrive midday) ★MAIDEN PORT★
- Mon 23 Svolvær, Norway
- Tue 24 Tromsø, Norway
Tromsø surprised visitors in the 1800s: they thought it very sophisticated and cultured for being so close to the North Pole – hence its nickname, the 'Paris of the North'. It looks the way a polar town should – with ice-capped mountain ridges and jagged architecture that is an echo of the peaks
- Wed 25 Honningsvåg (Nordkapp), Norway
Cruising along North Cape
- Thu 26 Hammerfest, Norway (depart early pm)
- Fri 27 Leknes, Norway (arrive midday)
- Sun 29 Molde, Norway
- Mon 30 Bergen, Norway (depart early afternoon)
Many visitors fall in love with Bergen, Norway's second largest city, at first sight. Seven rounded lush mountains, pastel wood houses, the historic wharf, winding cobblestone streets, and Hanseatic relics all make it a place of enchantment

- Tue 7 Tobermory, Isle of Mull (arrive midday)
- Wed 8 Ullapool, Scotland
- Thu 9 Lerwick, Shetland Islands (depart late night)

The Chinese New Year

On the opening day evil spirits are driven away with firecrackers, fireworks, burning bamboo canes and as much riotous noise as can be joyously created. Each day, up to the arrival of the full moon 15 days later, sees a variety of ancient traditional and religious customs honoured. Finally the appearance of the full moon is celebrated with the Lantern Festival when all join together in the streets carrying a colourful array of lighted lanterns. Hong Kong is famed for entertaining the largest of the celebrations and fireworks displays, creating an outrageous pageant of pyrotechnics. Celebrate the year of the dog on Friday 16th February 2018 when Celebrity Constellation® docks in Hong Kong

WELCOME TO NORWAY

Norway is a land of diversity and drama. From the world's longest fjords to its northernmost towns, this archipelagic landscape is a mecca of stunning land formations, exhilarating adventures and historical sites that make a cruise to this country a matchless experience.

Ålesund

Famed for its attractive, colourful Art Nouveau architecture and sapphire seas, Ålesund is known as the cultural centre of the region. Countless events take place throughout the year, such as the Festival of New Norwegian Literature and music festival Jugendfest. When you're not busy becoming immersed in the diverse culture of the city, visit nearby UNESCO World Heritage Site Geirangerfjord; hike the snowy Hjørundfjord or simply take in the sights of the North Sea at Kniven viewpoint.

Flåm

Flåm is a tiny village with big things to offer. Home to Sognefjord, the world's deepest and second longest fjord, Flåm will stimulate the senses with steep mountains, thundering waterfalls and beautiful valleys. The Nærøyfjord features on the elite UNESCO World Heritage List, and the Flåm Railway was named the 'world's most incredible train journey' by Lonely Planet in 2014. After sampling all of Flåm's thrilling adventures why not relax with a drink from Ægir Bryggeri, a world-class brewery.

Hammerfest

One of the oldest settlements in Norway, this quaint urban town is nestled at the end of a 100km stretch of wilderness. Hammerfest is the world's northernmost town and is a favourite amongst hikers for its gentle ascents and offers some of the best spots to catch big, trophy fish. Another UNESCO World Heritage List Site, the Meridian Column lies in Hammerfest at the point where scientists once calculated the size of the Earth.

Tromsø

Tromsø is situated in the northern Arctic region of Norway, perfectly positioned to witness the astounding Northern Lights. Here, you will find the perfect harmony of nature and culture in a town that is commonly known for being the site where Arctic expeditions begin. Hiking, fishing, kayaking and dogsledding are all possible in Tromsø. From May to July the midnight sun shines, allowing you to experience the town's wonders, from the world's northernmost botanical gardens to Tromsø's bustling nightlife.

Trondheim

Trondheim is a city poised on crisp rivers, interspersed with historic sites to stimulate the imagination. Explore the ruins of the Gregorius Kirke during the day before retiring to a local restaurant for the evening to sample local Nordic dishes. For culture seekers, Rockheim – the rock museum – is a fantastic interactive day out, and upon the river just outside is the Rolling Carpet installation, which looks like it is mysteriously flying when illuminated at night.

Please see page 4 to experience Norway in ultra-luxury or turn over for your chance to see the Northern Lights in 2018

The world's most stunning architecture

from some of its most unusual locations

Architecture is something that many of us give little thought to. The buildings that we encounter on a day-to-day basis are so familiar to us that we hardly notice the design and engineering prowess that goes into creating such a structure.

Occasionally though, we may come across a building that is so stunningly intricate, so majestic and so historically rich that we can do little but marvel at it. So here are three unexpected locations that are often touted as pillars of architectural calibre.

MYANMAR (BURMA)

Architecture in its many forms goes back to around the year 800 in Myanmar, with the Bagan Empire. The country's most notable features are the Buddhist temples and pagodas, often called zedis, payas or stupas. The Shwedagon Pagoda is perhaps the most stunning of them all, standing as a giant golden monument to Buddhism. Monasteries and royal palaces constructed with teak wood of the colonial era can also be found, although many imperial structures are now left to become part of the undergrowth, such as those in the city of Yangon.

BUENOS AIRES, ARGENTINA

Buenos Aires' architecture is situated at the crossroads of its 'Old World' history and its fiercely independent present-day culture. Art Nouveau apartments sit alongside Renaissance-style palaces, adapting European aesthetics to create original Argentinian styles. Avenida de Mayo features a grand stretch of buildings, including the Palacio del Congreso and the decaying Confeitería El Molino. The Palacio Barolo is similarly impressive – a neo-Gothic tribute to Dante's Divine Comedy that rises 100m above the streets and has 22 floors, symbolising the masterpiece's 100 songs with 22 verses each. Any art-lover must also see the Floralis Genérica, a solar-powered flower sculpture designed by Eduardo Catalano with awe-inspiring giant metallic petals that open to the sun.

PRAGUE, CZECH REPUBLIC

Prague is the largest urban historical centre on the UNESCO World Heritage List. Romanesque buildings with groin vaults such as the Basilica of St. George sit alongside gothic structures like St. Vitus Cathedral, with its pointed arches and flying buttresses. Belvedere is a prime example of Renaissance architecture, with bohemian-style stucco décor and paintings of mythical scenes. You can also spot the lavish styles of Baroque buildings, such as the Church of St. Nicholas, a fine example of the chiaroscuro effect. More modern styles include the Art Nouveau Palace of Industry and Cubist apartments. One sight not to miss is The Dancing House on Rasinovo Quay, which looks almost like a figure shaking its hips to the music of this lively city.

Jane ARCHER

Jane Archer is one of the UK's leading cruise journalists and the Daily Telegraph Travel's cruise expert. She has been sharing her experiences with Blue Horizons' readers for ten years.

A Princess in MYANMAR

I reckon every country has its own sound. Think about it. Car horns in New York, even more car horns in India, oompah bands in Germany, Mozart and Strauss in Austria. After a cruise on the Ayeyarwady in Myanmar this summer, I've concluded its sound is industry.

Thud thud. That was women bashing clay pots in the village of Yandabo. Bang, bang. Men hammering pieces of gold until they are thinner than paper. Ker-plunk, ker-plunk. Young girls weaving on ancient wooden looms in a factory in Mandalay.

I was sailing on the 72 passenger Princess Panhwar, a new vessel that has been a sell-out success since being launched this year by APT's 4★ Travelmarvel brand (but don't worry - Reader Offers not only has several departure dates from September 2017 onwards but great prices as well).

It's not difficult to see why she has been in demand. This is a beautiful vessel with polished teak decks (your shoes are cleaned by the lovely crew every time you return from a shore excursion to help protect the wood) and spacious cabins. Mine was a deluxe suite with a small balcony, a bug screen to keep flying beasts out and a spacious bathroom with shower.

And then there is the itinerary – a 14 night cruise between Yangon and Mandalay that shows off so much of what Myanmar has to offer while avoiding too much travelling on the bumpy roads that are a legacy of all the years the country was ruled by a military dictatorship.

Incidentally you also avoid a lesson in Burmese driving skills, which our guide, Zaw, explained were “based on the principles of flexibility and mutual understanding rather than rules”. And he wasn't joking!

There's the gleaming Shwedagon Pagoda in Yangon, 328 feet high and covered in 11 tons of gold, and tours of villages, markets and Minhla fort, which was built to fend off the British. It failed to do that. In 1885, after the Third Anglo-Burmese War, Burma became a province of British India and was finally given independence in 1948.

At Akauk Taung, look out for the thousands of Buddha images carved in the cliff by boatmen who had to stop here to pay tolls after the Second Anglo-Burmese War. At Pyay, a tour visits the golden Shwesandaw Pagoda that is said to contain two of Buddha's hairs. All the tours are complimentary, and Travelmarvel also includes wine, beer or soft drinks with lunch and dinner, as much bottled water as you can drink and all tips in the price.

Reader Offers sells this cruise from south to north, which is the perfect way to do it as there is plenty of sailing time at the start so you can relax and get over any jetlag before arriving in Bagan, a city famous for its thousands of temples, pagodas and stupas. And in a country where every town and village has temples, pagodas and stupas that is no mean feat.

There used to be more than 5,000 but many were destroyed in earthquakes so now there are just 2,237. Happily Travelmarvel's guides don't feel the need to take you every one but they visit a few of the best, including the fine Ananda Temple. And you will get a chance to watch the sun set over the Bagan Plain, which is truly delightful.

In Yandabo we watched women thud those clay pots into shape – each makes around 4,000 a month and they are fired in a 'kiln', which is more like a huge funeral pyre - and the village children put on a little show that included a local rendition of Frère Jacques (and we sang the French version for them!). If you have brought colouring pens or books from the UK, give them to their teacher to distribute rather than directly to the children so they don't get in the habit of begging.

As we sailed, the three local guides travelling with us gave lectures on the history and culture of Myanmar, as well as lessons in how to wear a longyi, the traditional costume, and thanaka, a white paste made from tree bark that women use as make-up and to protect their skin from the sun.

In Inwa, horse-drawn carriages were waiting to take us to see the local 'leaning tower' and two beautiful teak monasteries. They should have been the highlight of the day, but Rambo, the horse pulling my carriage, stole the show. He put his ears back and set off at breakneck speed, cutting corners, overtaking slower steeds and reluctantly stopping at the designated sights while my friend and I did our best to avoid bouncing out the back. Great fun!

By now the days were super busy – the 13th century Ponya Pagoda, where I watched in awe as workers scaled bamboo scaffolding high above the ground without safety harnesses, the 17th century egg-shaped Kaungmudaw Pagoda, the unfinished pagoda in Mingun that would have been a towering 150 metres high except that King Bodawpaya, who ordered it to be built, was warned he would die if it was ever finished. Needless to say, it was never finished but he still died.

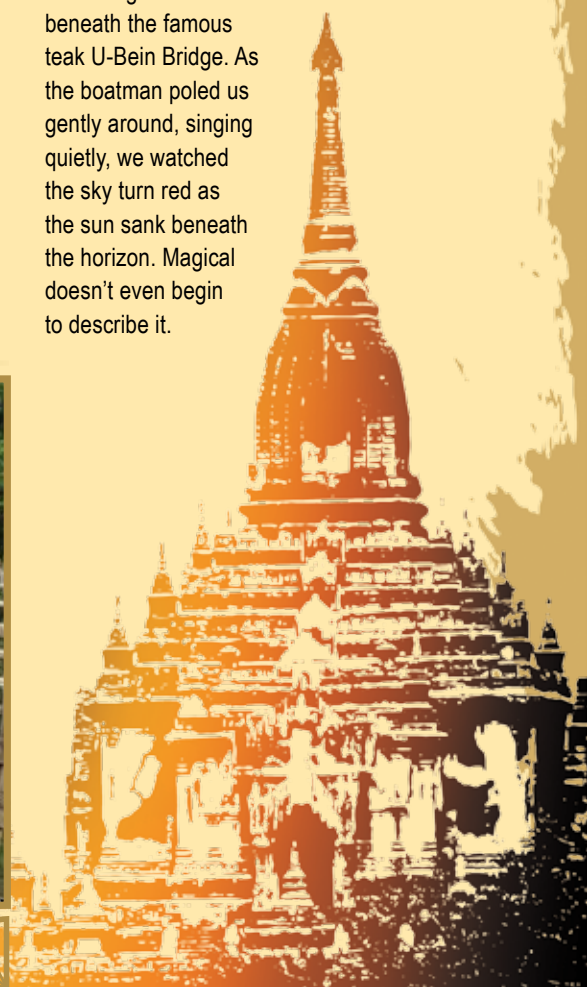

In Mandalay, we saw the world's biggest book according to the Guinness Book of Records – 729 marble slabs inscribed by Buddhist teachings – in Kuthadaw Pagoda and a statue of Buddha in Maha Muni

Pagoda that is getting bigger because so much gold leaf has been added to it over the years by praying men (women aren't allowed to go near it).

We also watched the gold beaters in action (such strenuous work they have to take a break every three minutes), visited silk and wood-carving factories and rounded off the day in a gondola on the calm waters of the Taungthaman Lake beneath the famous teak U-Bein Bridge. As the boatman poled us gently around, singing quietly, we watched the sky turn red as the sun sank beneath the horizon. Magical doesn't even begin to describe it.

Blue Horizons | Your Cruise Miles Magazine 45

Maritime Memories

with Nigel Lingard
(Non-Executive Director, Reader Offers Ltd)

LAST MONTH WE TOUCHED ON THE ISSUES FACING MEDITERRANEAN CRUISE OPERATORS, AND COINCIDENTALLY I HAVE SINCE THEN BEEN OUT ON A BRIEF CRUISE FROM ATHENS. GLORIOUS AUTUMN SUNSHINE AND CALM AZURE SEAS REMINDED ME WHY THIS IS STILL SUCH A MARVELLOUS AREA FOR CRUISE HOLIDAYS.

Sailing out from Piraeus harbour, our ship passed Cape Sounion at sunset before docking for an evening visit to the picturesque village of Kea. The next morning found us in Mykonos; a tender port for larger ships although my motor yacht was able berth in the inner harbour. Many guests took the ferry tour over to Delos Island, the mythical heart of the Cyclades, whilst I enjoyed strolling the winding lanes of the old town.

The extraordinary volcanic island of Santorini was our next call, reminding me of the first time I ever walked those 694 steps up to Fira town. I must confess on this occasion I took the cable car up, but a few of us did walk back down, cautiously avoiding piles of donkey poo and perspiring in 30 degree heat. Never had a cold beer tasted as good once we'd made it down to the quayside!

I left the ship in Rethymnon – and it's a sign of how cruising is developing that Crete now has several ports to choose from.

The whole of the Mediterranean is brimming with cruise destinations; cultural, scenic or beachside, so it's undoubtedly set to remain a firm favourite with cruise fans. (See page 33).

Recently there has been a spate of orders for new river cruise ships, which nowadays are ever more sophisticated. Features such as balconies, plus much larger cabins, have revolutionised the experience. The ability to visit inland destinations whilst also cruising through spectacular scenery is drawing even more of us to take to the world's waterways. One long trip we've always fancied is the voyage right from the North Sea to the Black Sea, including the Rhine-Danube Canal which makes this itinerary possible. Unlike ocean cruise ships, river vessels are limited as to maximum size, particularly by the height of bridges, so the fleet remains on a very sociable and manageable scale. (See pages 34-35).

As the winter days get shorter and colder, I'm sure we will all enjoy the opportunity to be planning for some sunny days afloat, whether it's to be at sea or upriver!

Nigel.

BREAD & BUTTER PUDDING

WITH WHITE CHOCOLATE AND CRANBERRIES

PREP TIME: 1 hr 30 mins

SERVES: 8

INGREDIENTS

CUSTARD

- 4 eggs
- 6 egg yolks
- 80g caster sugar
- 500ml whole milk
- 500ml double cream

BREAD AND BUTTER PUDDING

- 10 slices of stale white bread
- 150g butter, softened
- 2 tsp ground mixed spice
- 150g cranberries, semi-dried
- 200g white chocolate buttons
- 2 tbsp Demerara sugar

SATSUMA AND CRANBERRY SUZETTE

- 6 satsumas
- 75g cranberries, semi-dried
- 200g caster sugar
- 100g butter
- 200ml fresh orange juice

METHOD

1. Prepare the custard. Beat the eggs and sugar together in a bowl. Add the milk and cream to a pan, bring to a simmer and remove from the heat; pour into the eggs and sugar and mix
2. Butter an ovenproof dish. Remove the crusts from the sliced bread and butter all of the slices on one side. Halve the slices
3. Cover the bottom of the dish with a layer of buttered bread. Sprinkle with mixed spice, some cranberries and some of the white chocolate
4. Cover the first layer with a little custard. Repeat this process to make more layers of bread then custard (leave a little custard for serving). Press down firmly, cover with cling film and leave in the fridge overnight
5. Prepare the suzette. Segment the satsumas. Add the sugar to a non-stick pan and heat until a golden caramel forms. Remove from the heat and add the butter
6. Mix in the butter by shaking the pan, add the orange juice and return to the heat. Bring to the boil and reduce until it reaches the consistency of a caramel. Stir in the cranberries and satsuma segments and warm through
7. Preheat the oven to 160°C/gas mark 3
8. Remove the cling film from the bread and butter pudding and sprinkle some Demerara sugar over the top. Bake for 30-40 minutes
9. Spoon some warm suzette over the pudding. Serve with custard
