ALL ABOARD FOR THE ULTIMATE CANADIAN EXPERIENCE

Katie Downing, Commercial Account Manager recently travelled on board the award-winning Rocky Mountaineer and shares her experience.

Upon early morning check out of our hotel in Vancouver, we were greeted by Rocky Mountaineer hosts who gave us our boarding passes and it was only a five minute ride to the Rocky Mountaineer terminal where we boarded the train for our journey on the First Passage to the West route.

The red carpet was laid out as we embarked and made our way to the upper deck dome carriage as we were lucky to be travelling in the GoldLeaf Service. As I took to my super comfortable leather seat at the back of the carriage I was greeted by our on board host who served us a fruit cocktail to toast our departure. As the train pulled away, all of the wonderful station staff were lined up waving us goodbye.

The on board hosts were extremely engaging, welcoming and happy to make the journey and experience as comfortable and as memorable as possible. They advised we could see all kinds of wildlife including bear, elk, moose, bald eagles, osprey, salmon and mountain goat.

The route we were on is famous for uniting the country and connecting British Columbia to Canada over 125 years ago. It travels over the famous Canadian Pacific Railway which was Canada's first trans-continental line opened in 1885. This is also the original route Rocky Mountaineer started in 1990 when the last regular passenger trains on the line were disconnected.

The remote Canadian villages are of as much interest where you will learn of famous villagers who have made these areas memorable for various reasons. Embrace the history and visualise how life was as you travel through these scenic areas.

As you sit back, relax and take in the scenery the hosts will never let your glass become empty and will offer snacks throughout. The small attention to detail is outstanding and second to none. As I returned from lunch, my water bottle had been filled up and my blanket folded ready for me to settle back in for the afternoon. The knowledge of the hosts is remarkable and they share this with you at every opportunity along the way.

I have never travelled so effortlessly from check in to embarkation and on board everything is seamlessly straight forward. The only thing you need is your boarding pass and camera. And make sure you keep your camera at the ready in case you spot that lone bear or group of elk roaming in the Canadian Rockies...

REYKJAVÍK, ICELAND

The Icelandic capital has a quirky character of its own. Although it is one of the world's smallest capital cities, it is home to almost half of Iceland's population. Mosaics, murals and sculptures are found throughout the oldest part of the town where brightly coloured houses with tin roofs are watched over by the towering Hallgrímskirkja Church

KRISTIANSUND, NORWAY

Kristiansund is one of Norway's most distinctive towns with its colourful post-war architecture. The town is located in a beautiful setting on four islands connected by bridges at the ocean's edge. Take a trip on the Sundbåten boat, the world's oldest mode of public transport still in operation

LONGYEARBYEN, SPITSBERGEN

There are many possibilities for walking and sight-seeing in Longyearbyen. Walking out of the settlement into the fjord, you will see the old cemetery and several abandoned mine buildings. Visit the Svalbard museum which provides an excellent insight into the life of miners, as well as the other local industry, whaling

Maritime Memories

with Nigel Lingard
(Non-Executive Director, Reader Offers Ltd)

WHEN IT COMES TO
PLANNING OUR OWN TRAVELS,
WE ARE STILL FOREVER
DEBATING BETWEEN
ADVENTUROUS TRIPS TO TICK MORE DESTINATIONS OFF OUR
TO-DO LIST, OR SETTLING FOR SOMETHING MORE RELAXING AND LESS RISKY!

The adventure side won again recently, when we fulfilled a long-held wish to experience the Amazon rainforest. We flew down to Manaus after a few days on business in Florida, stepping off the aircraft into that extreme sticky heat which typifies all equatorial regions. Our home for the next week was a locally built wooden boat with just nine cabins, aboard which 17 of us enjoyed an amazing river cruise deep into the jungle.

It was after Sonja and I tipped over our kayak, spending 15 minutes (which seemed like a lifetime) floating in the anaconda, caiman and piranha infested Rio Negro before being rescued, that we agreed to make our next holiday a much, much safer one!

River cruising on proper, sophisticated vessels is enjoying a boom time, with many new cruise ships being delivered and new destinations being pioneered. The Reader Offers team are working with a select few partners who ensure a deluxe river based holiday experience, and I am sure we will see continued growth as the word spreads of how really special these new programmes are.

(Scenic and Emerald Waterways launch promotion on pages 28 & 29 and 26 & 27)

Having survived the Amazon experience we rounded off the Brazil trip with a few days in Rio de Janeiro; our first ever visit to this amazing city. It really is very, very large – consider that the Christ the Redeemer statue is perched on a mountain far higher than Ben Nevis, yet sat amidst a residential city suburb! Sunbathing on Copacabana Beach, lunch up on Sugar Loaf Mountain, dinner in Ipanema – this is a city I have to rank alongside Sydney or Cape Town as truly memorable.

Talking about adventures, this neatly introduces another cruise sector which is expanding of late – the expedition ships which effectively offer a 'soft adventure' experience to remote destinations. These tend to be places with limited infrastructure, so the ships are of quite limited capacity. Earlier expedition ships were quite spartan, but recently some of the luxury cruise operators have moved into the game, including our friends at Silversea. This has not distracted them from their traditional cruise fleet, as yet another super-luxury vessel, Silver Muse, will shortly make her debut.

(Silver Muse's maiden voyage on pages 46 & 47)

Wishing you a Bon Voyage,

Nigel.

Georgia & Callum say 'Buongiorno' from MS Koningsdam

Sales Consultant, Callum Brennan and Digital Marketing Executive, Georgia Jaggs were lucky enough to visit the brand new MS Koningsdam, the newest flagship of the Holland America fleet.

MS Koningsdam has been eagerly awaited to make its way to the shores of the Mediterranean where she will be based at her new home port. As a mid-sized ship, holding just 2,600 passengers, she is the perfect size to still navigate to the smaller ports of call along your voyage. Whilst we were on board, the ship was running at full passenger capacity but we didn't at any time feel overwhelmed with the amount of people around us. MS Koningsdam has not been compromised with her ship space to passenger ratio allowing her to be a truly luxurious ship.

She has been built with a music theme throughout the ship, celebrating the true music of past and present. Whether you're walking the lower decks or taking in the views from the Crow's Nest, you will always find a subtle music theme around this ship which has been beautifully mastered. Even the central atrium has been designed to resemble a giant harp – which is spectacular in itself.

Entertainment on board MS Koningsdam really goes above and beyond expectations with a variety of different performances and shows to suit all different tastes. The main show lounge called World Stage has been built over two decks and has a 270 degree LED big screen in the foreground, which really brings the shows to life and raises the bar of on board entertainment. We witnessed themed shows, from Earth One: a journey of Mother Nature through the ages, to the Upbeat Beatles which truly honoured The Beatles, legacy. Both shows were followed by standing ovations which just goes to show how much effort and hard work the entertainment team put into their performances.

We also visited some of the alternative entertainment venues. At Billboard you can find face-to-face pianists playing their crowd's favourite songs; while at the Queen's Lounge, enjoy the amazing BB Kings Soul and Jazz nights. This beautiful venue is where passengers can sing and dance the night away, whilst being served their favourite cocktail. If a quieter night is more your scene, the Crow's Nest offers soft music throughout the evening - perfect for sitting back, relaxing and embracing the ocean views.

MS Koningsdam also offers Movies under the Stars, where you watch the latest films on the pool deck and with the retractable roof above you, even the weather will not spoil this one of a kind experience. However, if you do get a little chilly, the staff bring round blankets and pillows for maximum comfort. We recommend you pay a visit to the New York Deli before the movie starts for some cheesy nachos and hot wings, or some popcorn.

One of the highlights on board was undoubtedly the incredible cuisine. A personal favourite was the renowned specialty restaurant, Tamarind. The restaurant's setting was elegant and intimate, with a selection of mouth-watering Asian offerings on the menu.

Another great aspect of this ship is that Holland America bring the destination on board. If you're looking to immerse yourself in the local cuisine of the destinations you're visiting, enjoy an al fresco dining experience on the Lido deck.

On top of all the great food, entertainment and service, it must be noted how stunning this ship is. Every area has been impeccably designed with an elegant and sophisticated feel, which still holds on to the traditional values of the Holland America Line. Every deck offers mesmerising artwork and the music theme can be seen throughout.

We were lucky enough to stay in a Veranda Stateroom with a very large Balcony. The stateroom was decorated with light wooden furnishings, creating a minimalistic and modern feel. There were plenty of plugs around the room and even USB ports next to the bed to charge our phones. We were surprised by the innovative features, including the interactive TV offering a map of the itinerary, what the weather was like at our next destination, plus plenty of free TV shows and films.

Overall, we would highly recommend this ship for those looking to experience premium 5 star luxury. Luxury on board the MS Koningsdam is delivered in the finer details with things such as the staff remembering your name and drink, highly knowledgeable sommeliers to guide you to pick the perfect blend to complement your meal, as well as the effort gone to bring the destination on board, with themed nights, locally sourced food and drinks and a packed activities programme. If you're looking for delicious cuisine, enthralling entertainment and superior service, then MS Koningsdam is the perfect choice.

Entertainment on board MS Koningsdam really goes above and beyond expectations

Jane ARCHER

Jane Archer is one of the UK's leading cruise journalists and the Daily Telegraph Travel's cruise expert. She has been sharing her experiences with Blue Horizons' readers for ten years.

IS THIS THE BEST RESTAURANT AT SEA?

I have lost track of how many cruise ship speciality restaurants I have dined in, but I do know that they have all been good and/or very good. And now I have found one that is exceptional. Would the chefs and waiters in Sel de Mer on Holland America Line's new ship MS Koningsdam please take a bow?

It's quite ironic really, because when I heard Holland America had booked me into the restaurant on my first night on board the ship I asked if I could eat instead in Tamarind, an Asian eatery on two of its other ships that I know from past experience falls into the 'very good' category.

The problem with Sel de Mer? The restaurant is billed as a seafood brasserie and I do not eat fish. My hosts didn't see it as a problem, promising there were non-fish dishes as well, but I still wasn't keen, envisaging a choice of one dish on the menu I could eat.

How wrong could I be? It turned out that Sel de Mer is more French bistro than seafood brasserie with so many non-fishy dishes on the menu that I was spoilt for choice.

Everything from coq au vin to steak frites and beef pot au feu. There's also a different dish of the day – as I was there on a Tuesday it was poulet rôti, which I ordered to follow a foie gras starter.

And the even more ironic part? My meal was so good that I booked another night in there a couple of days later. I started with the foie gras again (it was just too good to miss) and followed it up with a cassoulet - duck, pork and garlic sausage braised with cannelloni beans – that was packed with taste and easily rivals any similar dish I have had in France.

"MY MEAL WAS SO GOOD THAT I BOOKED ANOTHER NIGHT"

I should of course mention that the restaurant also has plenty for fish lovers, from a seafood platter to a traditional Marseilles bouillabaisse and moules frites. Friends had the salt-crust baked branzino (sea bass) and pronounced it excellent.

MS Koningsdam marks a new direction for Holland America, a HAL 2.0 if you like. There are familiar venues such as Tamarind and the Pinnacle Grill steakhouse so past passengers will feel at home, but also some nifty new features that once and for all quash the idea that Holland America is a bit stuffy.

The décor is contemporary, there's a new entertainment area called Music Walk, where you can alternatively listen to classical melodies, pop or blues, and three-storey high LED screens in the theatre where they show excerpts from the BBC's Frozen Planet series set to live music written by British composer George Fenton.

There is also a new venue where you can blend your own red wine. I'll be honest; some of the wines we were mixing tasted better to me than my final concoction, which was bottled for me to drink with dinner and got better by the third glass. Put it another way, any thoughts I might have harboured of becoming a master wine blender have been well and truly dashed!

Culinary Arts Center

Billboard Onboard

Blend

“PLENTY FOR FISH LOVERS, FROM A SEAFOOD PLATTER TO A TRADITIONAL MARSEILLES BOUILLABAISSE”

The café, designed to resemble the gabled houses that line Amsterdam’s canals and with blue furnishings and orange flowers, is the real McCoy, with Dutch foods sourced from Holland and served by staff from the Netherlands.

I tried the Dutch pea soup, which was tasty but should have been served hotter, and the apple and bacon pannekoek, but never did pluck up courage to order the van dobbe bitterballen. No, I have no idea what it is either, but luckily MS Koningsdam is cruising to the Baltic and Norwegian fjords from Amsterdam this summer and next so you don’t have to travel too far to hop on board and find out!

The theatre-style Culinary Arts Center that’s used for cooking demonstrations on Holland America’s other ships has been given a massive overhaul on Koningsdam and now resembles a hipsters’ hangout with bare table tops and an open kitchen.

It is still used for cooking demonstrations but also has six fully-equipped cookery stations where passengers can prepare dishes with the help of one of the ship’s chefs. I looked in on a paella cookery class and it was a hive of activity. Once the dish is prepared, it is served for lunch with a glass or two of wine. And all for $29 including the tittle, which is quite a bargain.

In the evening, the venue becomes Dinner, a new restaurant. It serves two five-course menus, A and B (I think they were struggling with names here!), that pick up on the latest foodie fad for combining unusual flavours and textures and artistically arranging everything on the plate.

I was there for menu A – a beetroot salad followed by celery and kale risotto to start, then a choice of rib-eye beef with parsnip purée, sea bass or a vegetarian quinoa (a seed rather like buckwheat that is supposed to be very good for you) with zucchini. To finish there was either a cheese plate with wild honey or a selection of chocolate dishes.

It’s all so healthy that I felt only a few pangs of guilt tucking in to bagels for breakfast next day and then munching on freshly-cooked pizzas for lunch in the New York deli. This is another new venue which, together with a Dutch café, is a nod to Holland America Line’s heritage (the company started out selling transatlantic voyages from Rotterdam to the Big Apple 143 years ago).

Yankee Harbour

Early sealers to the area used Yankee Harbour on Greenwich Island as frequent base of operations because it has a remarkable natural haven created by a spit nearly one kilometre long (0.6 mi). The spit is a favoured haul out for tired weddell, crabeater, fur, and elephant seals now that the hunters are gone
