HELLO AND WELCOME

TO YOUR SPECIAL PLATINUM JUBILEE EDITION OF BLUE HORIZONS

Jeremy Dickinson,
Chairman of ROL Cruise

It is my pleasure to bring to you this special Platinum Jubilee edition of Blue Horizons! In celebration of the Queen's 70 years on the throne, we have collected an array of cruise offers to tempt you to follow in Her Majesty The Queen's footsteps and travel the world, from Australia to the Caribbean, and from sea to shining sea.

In a first for Ambassador Cruise Lines, their ship Ambience will embark on her maiden grand world voyage in 2024! Turn to pages 04-05 to discover the ports she will sail to, and the exclusive benefits on offer with ROL Cruise.

Hot on the heels of her sister ship is the brand new Ambition, the second lady of Britain's newest cruise line. We are delighted to present her maiden season on pages 06-07. Here you'll find two handpicked sailings from her maiden season, and they are certainly not-to-be-missed. Spend Christmas in the Caribbean or explore the Amazon on an unmissable adventure.

We are thoroughly in love with rail travel, which is why we have not one, but two exclusive Signature Experiences lined up, both featuring once-in-a-lifetime rail journeys. It will be hard to choose between them! On pages 36-37 head to the wilderness on board The Canadian; and on pages 38-39 its a crowd-favourite, the ever popular Indian Pacific Train, a locomotive journey across the vast Australian desert.

ROL Cruise have some way to go before we reach the mighty milestone of 70 years, but we are certainly proud of the 26 years we have accumulated so far. We can only trust we reach our 70th anniversary with as much strength and dignity as our monarch. Until then we shall continue to offer the exclusive benefits and 5★ service you have come to expect from the UK's No.1 Interdependent Cruise Specialist.

Happy Cruising!

YOUR WORLD VOYAGE HIGHLIGHTS

Mombasa, Kenya

Equally known for its miles of white-sand beaches and well-protected game reserves, this eastern Kenyan city hugs the Indian Ocean, making it the ideal destination for both surf and safari*. Touched by centuries of colonization, Mombasa's skyline is a collection of UNESCO designated Portuguese, Arab, and English architecture interspersed with modern hotels.

Cape Town, South Africa

Cape Town is considered one of the most beautiful cities in Africa and it's easy to see why. Ascend Table Mountain by cable car and enjoy breath-taking views of the city, surrounding suburbs and Atlantic Ocean.

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil

The famous Cristo Redentor (Christ the Redeemer) statue can be seen from most districts in Rio de Janeiro and is said to protect the city with its wide, open arms. An impressive 30 metres tall, the statue sits atop the Corcovado Mountain and is listed as one of the New Seven Wonders of the World.

In the 1930s, Cunard began its close and enduring relationship with the British Royal Family. In 1934, RMS Queen Mary was named after HM Queen Mary, who subsequently visited the flagship in Southampton prior to its maiden voyage. HM Queen Elizabeth (later known as the Queen Mother) also maintained an enduring love for the ship, visiting it several times during the liner's service career, and travelling on board as well: even briefly taking the wheel from Captain Bisset.

The Cunard link with royalty grew and strengthened over the following years, with HM Queen Elizabeth (later known as The Queen Mother) launching the RMS Queen Elizabeth in 1938.

In 1967, HM The Queen launched Queen Elizabeth 2 in Scotland, furthering the bond between Cunard and royalty. She even travelled on board the ship in 1990 – the first time a reigning monarch had sailed on board a passenger ship operating a commercial voyage. In 2004 she became godmother to Queen Mary 2, and six years later also christened Queen Elizabeth.

The Queen Mary 2 was christened by Her Majesty The Queen in Southampton in 2004 in a very royal ceremony.

Confetti fell from the ceiling of a covered grandstand after Queen Elizabeth II named the vessel and a bottle of Veuve Cliquot champagne broke on cue.

5 ROYAL MOMENTS

WITH JENNIE BOND

Meeting Diana

The Diana years were traumatic for everyone involved. My life was ruled by my pager and by phone calls from the office calling me in, day or night, to report on yet another dramatic turn of events.

Even so, I couldn't help but like the Princess. She invited me to her apartment at Kensington Palace on a few occasions to talk through all that was happening in her troubled life.

Months before her notorious Panorama interview, she confided in me that there had been "three of them" in her marriage. And yet she told me, too, that she felt Camilla had behaved with dignity and loyalty, and deserved some form of recognition.

Diana had the most glorious giggle and would often throw her head back, laughing... usually after telling a story against herself.

After one of our last meetings I told her she had great legs and wondered what tights she wore. She ran off to the bedroom and came back with an unopened pair which she insisted on giving me. I wore my "royal tights" several times until I accidentally laddered them. I wrote to the Princess in mock dismay about the demise of my hosiery. Before I knew it, I had a phone call inviting me to the Palace, where I was presented with a white shoebox. Inside were seven pairs of tights and a light-hearted note from Diana.

After she died I packed the remaining two pairs away, forever.

An Invitation to the Palace

People often imagine that to be appointed as the BBC's royal correspondent you have to be vetted by royalty. Nothing could be further from the truth. It's the newsroom boss who appoints you, and it's then up to you to get acquainted with the people at the Palace. In the first instance, that's certainly not the Queen herself, but her press secretary and staff.

I must say, though, that nothing quite beats the first time I was waved through those famous gates to crunch my stilettoed way over the gravel to the Privy Purse entrance. I wondered if I would have to knock but, just as I arrived at the top of the steps, the door swung open and a liveried footman ushered me in.

"Good morning, Miss Bond," he said, guiding me to the small waiting room just beside the Press Secretary's office.

It was the first of scores of visits to the Palace over the following three decades. Some were routine: a chance to chat through upcoming events or analyse the current state of play. But some were exceptionally dramatic, for example the time I was summoned to a top secret meeting with a handful of correspondents from other networks, to be told in the strictest confidence that the marriage of the Prince and Princess of Wales was over.

As soon as the Prime Minister, John Major, had announced the news in the Commons, we were allowed out of the Palace. We raced across the gravel, our hearts beating in panic, to get to our cameras outside and relay the details to the world. A moment in history, for sure.... but for us, just another roller-coaster of a day at the office!

Tea with the Prince

Journalists are not high on the list of Royalty's favourite people. But most of the Royal Family understand that there's little point in having an invisible monarchy. The media, therefore, are a necessary nuisance. And I like to think that I've always had a good relationship with Prince Charles. I've followed him around the world, reported on the cruel years of his marriage breakdown and seen him find new happiness with the love of his life, Camilla.

He used to joke about my inappropriate footwear on tours abroad. Seeing me stumbling over a muddy, ploughed field near St. Petersburg in my white stilettos, he called over saying, "Wrong shoes, I think, Miss Bond!" And it was much the same when he caught me in the same shoes in the middle of a cornfield in New Zealand.

I shall always remember the first time he invited me to Highgrove for a tour of the gardens, followed by tea. We sat in his drawing room and chatted about issues that mattered to him then... as they do now: organic farming, genetic engineering, the environment and sustainability.

He was a man with a mission, and it is a mission that is still just as important to him.

Party at the Palace

It's hard to believe that it's 20 years since the Queen celebrated her Golden Jubilee.

It was an incredibly busy year for her... and for me. It began with the sad death of her sister, Margaret, followed a few weeks later by that of her beloved mother at the grand old age of 101.

It was an inauspicious start to a year of celebration.

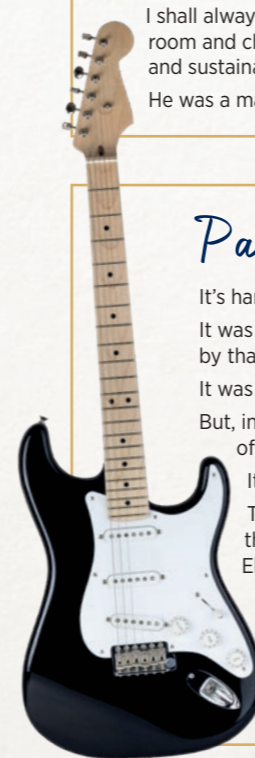

But, in the following months, the Queen, the Duke and a large press party set off on a tour around the whole of the UK and much of the Commonwealth.

It was hectic and exhausting and fun.

There is, however, one moment from those celebrations that sticks in my mind more than any other. And that was when thousands of people were invited into the Palace gardens for a full-on rock concert. The line-up included Paul McCartney, Elton John, Queen, Annie Lennox and Ozzy Osbourne. Quite what the Queen thought of it all, we shall never know. But I'm sure, like me, she will never forget the extraordinary way the concert opened.

Suddenly, an electric guitar twanged the opening chords of the National Anthem. Everyone looked around to see where it was coming from. And then, high up on the Palace roof, we saw the long, dark mane of Brian May blowing in the wind as he banged out "God Save The Queen."

What a night it was! No-one who was there could ever forget it!

Getting to know "Her Maj"

Meeting the Queen is always special. In the course of more than 30 years reporting on the Royal Family, I've been fortunate enough to meet her several times, and each occasion has been a day to remember.

The Queen has a dazzling smile and a dry sense of humour. Probably unwisely, I've often tried to tap into that humour, with varying degrees of success. I've told her ludicrous stories about horses, tales about seeing her wedding dress with its unbelievably tiny waist and I've joked about standing outside "her house" and wondering if she's inside watching me on TV and thinking "Whatever is that woman talking about now?!"

Some of my efforts have won a smile from her, my admiration for her minuscule waistline when she married made her giggle, but one or two of my stories elicited only an icy stare... before she quickly moved on.

Oh well, win some lose some!

FROM SHELF TO SEA...

Whilst many of us may not have the luxury of time to indulge in a good book back at home, cruising is the perfect opportunity to delve into a new novel - or two! If you need inspiration for what to read on your next cruise, then be sure to add the below books to your list, handpicked by ROL Cruise...

Finding Me: A Memoir

BY VIOLA DAVIS

This is a story which takes you from a crumbling apartment to the Broadway stage. In her own words, Viola, the first African-American to win an Oscar, Emmy and Tony award, tells us how she rose out of poverty to the heights of international stardom. Its a powerful and honest tale, a deep reflection of finding one's own voice. And she encourages others to find themselves, and thrive.

One Greek Summer

BY KATE FROST

For a perfect dose of summer sunshine, escape to Greece with this romantic novel. Beautiful scenery, romance and hope, a clever plot and intriguing characters, Kate Frost weaves a stunning tale. A perfect book to relax with.

Queen of Our Times: The Life of Elizabeth II

BY ROBERT HARDMAN

Spanning the years of abdication, war and danger and retelling decades of romance, tragedy and duty, this definitive biography is a must-read for those wishing to delve a little deeper into the tale of Britain's longest reigning monarch. Written by an internationally renowned author, this is a wonderful read through history.

Jane ARCHER

Jane Archer is one of the UK's leading cruise journalists and cruise expert for the Daily Telegraph. She has been sharing her experiences with Blue Horizons' readers for the past 14 years.

A ROYAL BONANZA

The things you learn listening to Radio 4. I had no idea Coronation Chicken was created in 1953 for a banquet to celebrate the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II, although the name is a bit of a giveaway. I hear chefs are now hard at work on a recipe for a cake to celebrate her Platinum Jubilee.

It got me thinking how I'd like to celebrate her remarkable 70 years on the throne. Street parties are all very well but something to remember long after the plates were cleared away is much more appealing.

Surprise, surprise, I decided on a cruise, but one with royal connections of course. Cunard's three Queens are obvious contenders because of their names and the fact they were christened by the Queen and Camilla, the Duchess of Cornwall. Princess Cruises' Royal Princess, named by the Duchess of Cambridge in a gala ceremony in Southampton, is also in the running.

Or maybe a cruise where destinations have the royal connection. Edinburgh, home of the Royal Mile and the Royal Yacht Britannia, springs to mind. Silversea, Oceania Cruises and Princess Cruises are calling into the city this summer on round-Britain cruises and have various royal themed tours. Go with Silversea and you can even have breakfast on the Royal Yacht.

India was independent when the Queen ascended the throne but it's got loads of royal connections and anyway is just a wonderful place to visit - a riot of colour, people and sights.

Several lines call into Mumbai and Cochin on their world cruises but for the ultimate royal escape, it has to be Uniworld River Cruises' Golden Triangle and Ganges voyages.

You get New Delhi, the Taj Mahal and beautiful Pink City of Jaipur on the tour, and bustling Kolkata on the cruise. Pride of place there goes to the striking Victoria Memorial, built in memory of our other long-serving British queen. It's in Kolkata because that was the capital of the British Raj when work began but by the time it was finished in 1921, the capital had moved to New Delhi.

Jamaica, one of the stops on William and Kate's recent Caribbean tour, offers a very different royal adventure. The island is a favourite on the West Indies cruise circuit with Celebrity Cruises, Royal Caribbean International, Holland America Line, P&O Cruises and others. And no wonder. This is where Ian Fleming wrote his James Bond novels and where you can climb gushing Dunn's River Falls (not as easy as it sounds), swim with dolphins, even speed down a mountain on a bobsled. If that sounds a little too adventurous, there are gorgeous sandy beaches made for lazing.

Or follow in the footsteps of the Cambridges to the Seychelles, the Indian Ocean idyll they put on the map when they honeymooned there in 2011. They splashed the cash in a swanky resort, but I reckon island hopping around the archipelago on Emerald Cruises' Emerald Sakara, a superyacht sister to Emerald Azzurra launching next year, is a better bet. Just 100 passengers, suites fit for a king and days ashore up close to exotic birds, giant tortoises, snorkelling or swimming. There are four sailings in early 2023 (so not the jubilee year but too irresistible to exclude on a mere technicality!), each visiting eight islands including Mahé, where the cruises start and end.

REMARKABLE 70 YEARS ON THE THRONE

But back to the Queen as after all it is her jubilee year. And back to Scotland given Balmoral is her favourite holiday retreat. Cue a voyage around Scotland on, what else, Fred Olsen's Balmoral. Choose the Scenic Isles and Celtic Cities sailing in September and you visit Edinburgh and John O'Groats, sail past mysterious Fingal's Cave, which counts Queen Victoria among visitors, and call into Falmouth, in the Duchy of Cornwall. I reckon that makes it a right royal flush!

YOUR VOYAGE HIGHLIGHTS

SPECTACULAR LANDSCAPES

The landscapes of Antarctica stretch as far as the eye can see - a beautiful realm preserved by pristine snow and ice, filled with ancient glaciers and blue-hued ice bergs. This is another world, devoid of human influence.

WILDLIFE IN THE ANTARCTIC

The region's spectacular wildlife rely on the Southern Ocean to provide the food on which they flourish. Immense numbers of creatures surround the rocky coast and ice floes, providing passing cruise ships with a living gallery of the natural fauna of this wonderful and little-experienced treasure.

FALKLAND ISLANDS

If you imagine the Falkland Islands to be insignificant specks of land fought over in a well-publicised war, think again. The land mass is huge - some 4700 square miles, yet with a tiny permanent population of just under 3000 people.

One of the New Seven Wonders of the World, the Taj Mahal is ubiquitously recognised as one of the world's greatest landmarks and finest examples of Mughal architecture. ## YOUR SIGNATURE EXPERIENCE HIGHLIGHTS

MARVEL AT THE MAGICAL SNOW MONKEYS OF JAPAN

The Japanese macaque, better known as the Snow Monkey are named so because they live in areas where snow covers the ground for many months each year and can be distinguished by their red faces, brown-grey fur and short tails.

During your tour, you'll spend time at the Jigokudani Monkey Park, home to the famous Snow Monkeys. Here you'll have the incredible opportunity to see wild monkeys bathing in a natural hot spring, known in Japan as an onsen. Accustomed to humans, the monkeys can be observed from very close quarters but as a highly protected species there are strict rules in place meaning you mustn't touch them - but you can watch! Marvel as large families of monkeys relax in the warm water - watching how they interact can be highly entertaining.
