CRUISE NEWS

NEW SHIPS ON THE BLOCK

Whether it's brand new and built from the ground up or a new take on an old favourite, there's plenty for us to look forward to in 2023. Here are the four cruise ships that we're most excited to see launch next year:

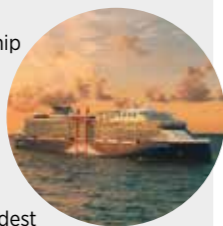

Ambition, Ambassador Cruise Line

Ambition is the second ship to join the Ambassador Cruise Line fleet. Built in 1999, Ambition started life as Mistral for Festival Cruises and has had a varied and interesting career ever since. When she re-enters service in May 2023, she will carry up to 1,200 passengers and boast a plethora of leisure facilities including fleet favourites, Buckingham Restaurant and The Palladium.

Celebrity Ascent, Celebrity Cruises

The Celebrity Cruises fleet is the pinnacle of premium cruising. And now, with the fourth ship in the magnificent Edge Series launching in December 2023, it's about to get even better. Celebrity Ascent will be the sister ship to Celebrity Beyond, but will feature newly-expanded open spaces on deck. Think bigger and better. What's more, she will boast the widest range of accommodation in the fleet.

Emerald Sakara, Emerald Cruises

More a luxury yacht than a cruise ship, Emerald Sakara will offer intimate cruising at its finest when she launches in August 2023. At 110 metres in length and with just 100 passengers on board, Emerald Yacht Cruises' newest ship is perfect for relaxing and discovering exciting destinations.

Seven Seas Grandeur, Regent Seven Seas Cruises

When she launches in November 2023, Seven Seas Grandeur will take the established excellence of the Regent Seven Seas Cruises fleet and refine it to create a luxury experience like no other at sea. With every luxury included, guests can embrace every single moment of their journey. Inspired by the past and re-imagined for the future, will Seven Seas Grandeur take the title of the "world's most luxurious cruise ship?"

Please call your Cruise Specialist for further details and how to secure your place on one of these exceptional ships!

From 1st to 13th November 2022, ROL Cruise will be donating £10 per booking made to the Royal British Legion Poppy Appeal.

HELLO AND WELCOME

TO THE NOVEMBER EDITION OF BLUE HORIZONS

Jeremy Dickinson,
Chairman of ROL Cruise

Hello and welcome to the November edition of Blue Horizons.

The rustle of multi-coloured leaves and the chill of an autumnal morning, with hopefully some sunshine still in residence; it's a beautiful season and perhaps a time to reflect, on what a year it has been, and what we'd still like to achieve in the time to come. There is always something on the horizon in the world of cruising, even if you choose to revisit a favourite place at a different time of year, you can find its an entirely new experience.

Our trusted partners at Scenic Cruises understand this very well, offering their incredible river cruises throughout the year. The delights of the Moselle Valley are as mesmerising in Autumn as in Summer, so why not turn to pages 22-23 for their Brand New 2024 Launch Promotion! Whichever date you choose, super earlybird savings are yours!

Of course, my favourite time of year is the festive season, so I am delighted to present a selection of festive cruises on pages 12-13. Whether you fancy tucking in to your turkey during a special Christmas Day at sea, or waking up on New Year's Day in a new country, or perhaps escaping in the run up to Christmas with a special Christmas Market cruise, we have the voyage for you.

I never seem to have enough words to describe all of our fantastic offers, so I shall select just one more from this incredible edition. It shall be the Brand New Festive Circumnavigation of Australia with Oceania Cruises. Combining the Finest Cuisine at Sea with a once-in-a-lifetime journey, the land down under beckons on pages 32-33. But hurry, this voyage sold out in record time last year.

Happy cruising!

Jane ARCHER

Jane Archer is one of the UK's leading cruise journalists and cruise expert for the Daily Telegraph. She has been sharing her experiences with Blue Horizons' readers for the past 14 years.

YES, I STILL DO – AND TO THE SAME MAN!

It's 4.20pm and Rachel has arrived to escort Mark and I from our suite on Seven Seas Explorer to a very important date we've lined up with Captain Rosario. Rachel, I should explain, is Explorer's social hostess; the date with the captain (call me Saro) is to renew our wedding vows after notching up 18 years together.

As we got hitched at sea, it seemed only fitting to keep the nautical theme going when we decided to celebrate achieving our milestone (all to do with my long and frequent absences on cruises, Mark likes to tell people!).

We've gone upmarket this time, repeating our vows on the Regent Seven Seas Cruises' ship dubbed the world's most luxurious before it was even built. All to do with its all-suite accommodation, apartment-style Regent Suite, art-deco looks and charming crew. Explorer is also one of the world's most inclusive ships, with drinks, excursions and almost everything you could ever want on holiday included in the price. Talk about a spoil!

You'd think second time around we would have a good idea of what we were doing, but we arrive on board seriously unprepared so thank goodness for Rachel, who has everything under control.

She has booked Captain Saro for the ceremony, chosen a venue, lined up a red carpet, put the galley on standby to bake a cake and ordered a bouquet for me, a boutonniere for Mark and a bottle of Champagne to pop once the deed is done. She also gives us a choice of vows (non-religious please) and the option of penning a few words of our own to say to each other once we have done the 'til death us do part' stuff.

All that (and a box of Leonidas chocolates delivered to our suite) is included in a renewal of vows package for couples on Regent into. For those just starting life together, there's a honeymoon package that includes a letter of congratulations from the captain as well as cake, Champagne, caviar, canapés and chocolates. Or for those marking a big birthday or anniversary, there's a letter of congratulations, rose petals, Champagne and chocolates.

As our vows ceremony isn't until late afternoon, I'm treating myself to a makeover in the spa. After all, it's only, err, twice that you do this marriage thing, well to the same person anyway. First up, Ruby is painting my nails, then it's over to Ivy for an age-defying facial and finally hairstylist Daryl tries to bring order to my wayward locks. Nails and face shining and hair grips in place, I race back to my suite. It's time to get changed.

Rather than worrying what to wear when renewing one's vows, I am going with the dress I got hitched in, while Mark is in the same suit. It's a neat bit of recycling, and I am more than a little proud that after 18 years and heaven knows how many cruises, my dress fits as well as the day I bought it. And they say cruising is all about overindulging!

Just in time, we're ready. It might not be the actual wedding, but I am just as nervous as Rachel escorts us downstairs and the first notes of Pachelbel's hauntingly-beautiful Canon in D Major float up from the atrium. It's the music we chose for our first wedding and accompanies us as we walk down the grand staircase, turn towards the red carpet and.... Wow!

When Rachel said some officers were attending as stand-in guests, we expected two or three, but 10 or more have turned out, all in full uniform. We walk the red carpet, Captain Saro takes his place at the podium and we are off. Cruise director Dru talks about love and marriage, the captain takes our vows, we read the few words we've penned and it's all over. Cue glasses of fizz all round because this, of all days, is one where cruising really is all about overindulging.

See page 30-31 to experience the Regent Seven Seas' difference for yourself.

Sat 11	Sihanoukville, Cambodia
Mon 13	Ho Chi Minh City, Vietnam
