ROL CRUISE COME 2ND AT THE TTG TOP 50 AWARDS

We are delighted to announce that we came 2nd in the Top Cruise Agents Category at the March 2017 TTG Top 50 Awards.

We were praised for our amazing customer service efforts, and the judges told us how 1st and 2nd places were extremely close and judging was difficult between ourselves and Six Star Cruises who took 1st place. We are so pleased to come in 2nd place out of 50 agents – this is a great achievement for us all.

A Life Well Travelled

Diary of a Tour Ambassador

In this nine-part series, our Tour Ambassador, Gillian Lowes, describes what it's like to have - in her own words - "the best job in the world".

Gillian Lowes
ROL Cruise Ambassador

May 2014 took me on a European jaunt to Venice, Monaco and Rome – three of my favourite cities. You can never visit Rome or Venice too many times in my opinion. Our guests were travelling to Venice on the Orient Express with a night in a London hotel before taking the train from London Victoria the next day. It was that night at Claridges that I began to realise that our guests were nothing like the calibre of holiday-makers I was used to dealing with in my previous roles with a lower end, yet very reputable tour operator giant. Well-travelled and discerning is how I would describe ROL Cruise guests, and always a pleasure to meet and look after.

My colleagues and I flew to Venice to meet our guests on arrival. The logistics there are crazy, with water taxis here and gondolas there, quite a challenge to safely deliver our guests to their hotels. But we managed and celebrated with cocktails that night at the famous (and stunning) Hotel Danieli, the set for many a scene from The Tourist starring Johnny Depp and Angelina Jolie.

The remainder of this trip consisted of us escorting our 140 guests on the national train service from Venice to Rome, first class of course; and dropping them off at Civitavecchia port for their luxury Silversea cruise. After their voyage ended in Monaco we escorted them all the way

Verona, Italy

Part Three: Cities of Love

St. Mark's Square, Venice

to London on the train, via Paris.

Phew, that was a heavy schedule and we slept for England once we arrived home. When I look back on this trip I smile whilst fondly remembering the evenings where we sipped Limoncello on our hotel terrace overlooking Venice's Grand Canal. Simply enchanting.

I remained on European terrain for my September 2014 assignment, and what a trip it was. The first destination was Athens to meet my group for their pre-cruise stay. Our hotel was in the city centre, just a regular 5★, very nice and easy to get around. But wait, as I took myself on a little tour of the Electra Palace, I found myself at the rooftop restaurant at sunset, a stone's throw away from some old dilapidated building called the Acropolis! What a fabulous sight. Cue the uniformed Ambassador bothering the waiters to capture some poses.

The cruise finished in Venice where I was ready and waiting to escort my group to Lake Garda. En route, a guided tour of the romantic city of Verona was included. The open-air Opera House and Juliet's Balcony have been on my 'to do' list for some time and here I was. Granted, not with the love of my life soaking up the romance, but I was more than happy to share it with my 45 lovely guests.

As for Lake Garda, it was also my first visit here and I was all set to see a lake. I was overwhelmed by the size of this gorgeous stretch of water, which definitely feels more like being by the sea. Our hotel was in the small tourist resort of Sirmione, a picture-postcard miniature town with seemingly more ice cream shops than the whole of Northern Italy put together, and surrounded by ancient castle walls. I had three whole days to soak it all in myself while the guests enjoyed their time there.

MARITIME MEMORIES

with Nigel Lingard
(Non-Executive Director, ROL Cruise)

EARLIER THIS YEAR WE TOOK A "SOFT ADVENTURE" TRIP
AROUND CENTRAL AFRICA –
BUT OF COURSE WATERWAYS
FEATURED AS ALWAYS!

On the Zambezi River we stayed on the Zambia side in a superb safari lodge, from which fishing trips took us out amongst the wallowing hippos. A visit to the Victoria Falls in Zimbabwe followed, and it is easy to see why this spectacular sight is such a popular add-on to South Africa cruises. In Botswana we cruised on the Chobe River, enjoying some of the finest game-viewing of our lives including lions in full pursuit of a warthog family – who all escaped on this occasion!

After all this excitement a relaxing Seychelles break followed, cruising around these beautiful islands on Variety Cruises' motor yacht Pegasus.

The Indian Ocean, with its many tropical archipelago, is growing steadily in popularity. More ships are now either based there or are passing through on longer voyages. (See pages 48-49 Oceania Indian Ocean).

In late April I was in northern Germany to chair the Cruise Europe Association's annual conference, at which 140 delegates from northern European ports mingled with executives from the many cruise lines operating in the region. This year's event was "twin centred", starting in Bremen some 40 miles up the Weser River, and then moving to the splendid new Columbus cruise terminal in Bremerhaven. North Germany's rivers and coastal destinations feature strongly in Fred. Olsen's programme of year-round sailings from UK ports. (See pages 4-9 Fred. Olsen).

European ports are, of course, always looking to extend their cruise season, and have enjoyed considerable success of late. Germany's TUI and Aida lines now have huge new ships based in Hamburg, Kiel and Bremerhaven year-round, and given the long sailing distance to winter sun destinations they tend to focus on cruises to the Baltic, Norway and British Isles. The latest mega-ships are really destinations in themselves when the weather outside is not so appealing!

THE INDIAN
TROPICAL
IS GROWING STEADILY IN POPULARITY.

Norway in particular has succeeded in offering an attractive winter cruise experience. Snow-based shore excursions in spectacular winter scenery, backed up by the Northern Lights phenomenon, have created a very popular addition to our cruise choices. (See page 40 Hurtigruten).

Whether you are planning that winter cruise escape, or are embarking on a summer cruise holiday, may I wish you a "Bon Voyage".

A Taste of Things to Come

Amelia has no sooner taken a sip of the Californian Chenin Blanc than she starts to make rather impolite slurping noises. Nothing to do with the quality of the wine you understand; rather she is teaching us the proper way to taste vino. We smile politely, take a sip of the Chenin Blanc and swallow.

Slurping, and the associated risk of dribbling for us amateurs, was never an option – at least not in public!

Amelia is Amelia Singer, a presenter on TV's The Wine Show, and she has come on Celebrity Eclipse® for a two-night mini-cruise from Southampton to Le Havre in France to host wine-tasting sessions, train the ship's sommeliers and unveil a new DIY wine-tasting kit.

“Slurping, and the associated risk of dribbling for us amateurs, was never an option – at least not in public!”

If you prefer a group tasting – and I reckon they are always more fun – both Amelia and Joe will be hosting wine-tasting sessions on two 11 night Best of the Western Mediterranean cruises from Civitavecchia (for Rome) this autumn as part of a new partnership between The Wine Show and Celebrity Cruises®.

The cruises are on Celebrity Reflection® and visit Italy, France, Spain and Gibraltar. Pick 11th September to sail with Joe, or 9th October to cruise with Amelia.

During our tasting we sipped our way through another three Californian wines – a Chardonnay, Pinot Noir and Zinfandel – while Amelia told us where they were grown, how soils change the taste of the grapes and where the various aromas come from.

Available only on Eclipse® for now (but likely to be rolled out across the fleet), the kit costs $59 and comprises a box of four 187ml bottles of wine that passengers can sip and slurp in the privacy of their own cabin while watching a video made by Amelia and the show's co-presenter Joe Fattorini.

Tuscan Grill

Jane
ARCHER

Jane Archer is one of the UK's leading cruise journalists and the Daily Telegraph Travel's cruise expert. She has been sharing her experiences with Blue Horizons' readers for ten years.

I was on Eclipse when it was named in Southampton but that was back in 2010 so it was great to get reacquainted with her, even if it was only for two nights. The décor is modern, the layout is easy to navigate and sitting out on that half-acre of real grass lawn is just lovely when the sun is shining, as it was as we set sail from Southampton.

The speciality restaurants are great too. I dined in Tuscan Grille the first night – there are pasta and fish dishes but really this is the place to come for steaks – and chose Murano for the second evening as my daughter, Ilana, and I had an excellent meal there on a Celebrity Silhouette® cruise to Israel six years ago.

Naturally I had high expectations this time and happily was not disappointed. Good food, nice service, but the meal is an event so don't expect to eat there and make it to the show. The cover charge is $50 per person (Tuscan Grille is $45).

Eclipse has sailed from Southampton each summer since she was christened there but it's all change next year as she is being replaced by Silhouette.

The ships are similar, but Celebrity made a few changes on the lawn when Silhouette launched. Instead of glass-blowing, there's the Lawn Club Grill, where you can make pizzas and cook your own meat (Ilana and I had fun doing both but the staff will do the work if you prefer), and out on the grass are eight cabanas for rent. I was initially skeptical about their value but it was such a luxury to have a guaranteed place in the sun with the added benefit of cold water and fresh fruit included in the price. Be warned though: they book up fast, especially on sea days.

Celebrity Silhouette® will be in Southampton throughout summer 2018, sailing to the Norwegian fjords, Baltic, Mediterranean and Canary Islands. I see ROL Cruise is currently selling the cruises with benefits including a free drinks package and on-board credit. A perfect incentive to book now if ever I saw one!

CRUISE LINE®

NORWEGIAN RETURNS TO THE UK

I last saw Norwegian Jade in 2008. She had just arrived in Southampton from Hawaii to start Norwegian Cruise Line's first-ever season of sailings from the UK and stayed just two years before NCL decided to quit no-fly cruising.

But now NCL is back, and so is Jade, so I jumped at the chance to see her again.

What a difference a decade makes. The rather garish Hawaiian look of old was swept away in a recent refit, replaced with more tasteful décor and new venues including an O'Sheehan's burger bar and a Mojito Bar.

Carpets and furnishings have been replaced, there is a larger Moderno Churrascaria, where hunks of meat on large skewers are carved table-side, and cabins have been fitted with bedside USB slots.

With no set dining or dress codes, she is the perfect choice for anyone who wants a casual cruise without the hassle of airports or flying. Better still for the Brits, NCL's new premium all-inclusive fares mean selected alcoholic and soft drinks and gratuities are included in the price.

She is sailing from Southampton to the Norwegian fjords, Iceland and Western Europe this summer and will be back again in 2018.

IT'S ALL GREEK TO ME

Four of Voyages to Antiquity's Greece itineraries next year start with a new five day pre-cruise land tour of the Peloponnese that visits Delphi, Mycenae, Nauplio and Epidaurus. An Amazing Experience with Azamara

Georgina Todd, Marketing Executive at ROL Cruise recently witnessed the spectacular luxury of Azamara Club Cruises®, here she shares her experience...

I was utterly delighted to be given the opportunity to experience an Azamara Club Cruises® ship. From the moment I stepped on board I was truly blown away by the wonderful and very classy ship, Azamara Quest®. With less than 700 passengers on board and only five decks, it doesn't take long before the ship feels familiar – a home-from-home.

The food is second-to-none. With so much choice on offer they really do cater to everyone's taste. From snacks in the cafés, the buffet, and to my personal favourite, the Discoveries Restaurant, where the menu is different every night. Simply some of the best food and service I have ever experienced.

The AzAmazing evening is not to be missed. I was delighted to find that all AzAmazing evenings are exclusive to Azamara passengers, meaning I am now one of very few fortunate individuals to see the Three Tenors in Livorno. Everything is incredibly well organised, with nearly all passengers attending this once-in-a-lifetime event.

Main staircase

My first night on board began with Azamara's famous poolside buffet and party – 'White Night'. Colourful décor and linen-draped tables, a fabulous buffet feast where the barbecued lobster certainly stole the show. After dinner, there was an excellent live band – the atmosphere was fantastic.

The service was extremely friendly, as well as efficient, especially in the restaurants. After a few evenings of dining in the Discoveries Restaurant the wait staff had come to know my favourite drink order and how I like my coffee.

Public area

*“I was truly blown away by the wonderful and very classy ship, Azamara Quest®”*

We were transferred from the port to the theatre with military precision to be met by the captain on arrival. A memorable evening which I will never forget.

There is an exceptional array of 'Cruise Global, Connect Local' shore excursions for every travel style available to book on board. I experienced a fabulous wine tasting at a classic Tuscan vineyard just outside of Lucca. I really did feel completely immersed in the destination and that's what Azamara is all about.

Beautiful small ships, destination-intensive itineraries, excellent food and a delightful on board experience, it's easy to see why so many of the passengers I met on board are loyal Azamara Club Cruises® customers. A truly 'AzAmazing' time.
