Part Five: A trip to Paradise Islands

A Life Well Travelled

Diary of a Tour Ambassador

Gillian Lowes
ROL Cruise Ambassador

Most of my October was spent in a destination that I used to think I would only ever visit for a honeymoon or some equally romantic special occasion.

Firstly, because it's far and very expensive to reach from the UK; but it also has that far-flung, exotic, once-in-a-lifetime feel to its name. Tahiti. Yes, Tahiti, in the South Pacific. As I think back to just after my interview for this job, the HR Manager was running through a list of possible places I may or may not visit if I was to accept the job offer. When she said the word Tahiti, I felt myself start to grin like a Cheshire cat. I don't think it would be a lie when I say that this word alone was the deciding factor for me taking the job.

Silversea's Silver Shadow was doing several itineraries around the South Pacific islands, in and out of Papeete, and we had high numbers of guests booked onto each of the three departures. My colleague, Alison, and I were the lucky ones to be sent out there to oversee that everything ran smoothly for our guests. Looking forward to it was an understatement. It was a mega countdown until we could wave goodbye to dreary England and head for one of the world's most desirable destinations. We did a little Tahiti dance in the lift at Gatwick after we checked in and prepared for the 21 hour journey. Excited much?!

for some hotel research. We popped over to the other side of the world as you do, crossing the International Date Line and advancing by almost a whole day, for a few days' work.

Back on the island of dreams, we got down to looking after our last groups.

While relaxing in the room one night, another unbelievable thing happened. As if being in Tahiti wasn't enough, our boss emailed us to ask 'if we'd mind doing a last-minute trip to Barbados a couple of weeks after we get back?' We really couldn't believe our luck.

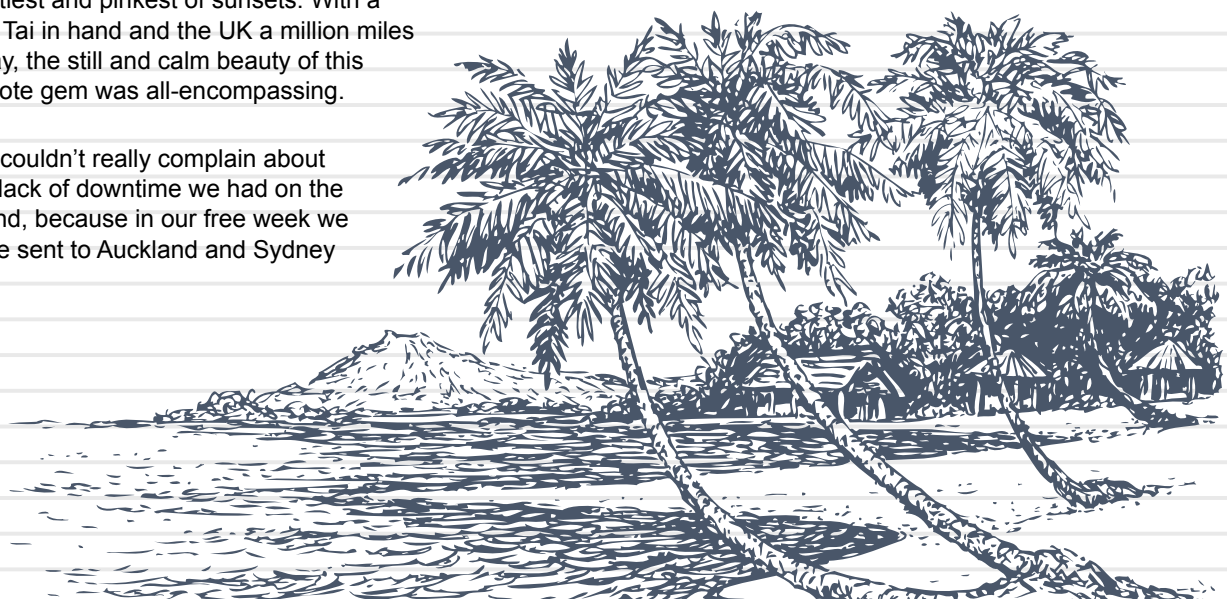

It was everything we'd imagined and more. The ambience of the island was a mix of island life and French culture. It was so laid-back, like an extended version of horizontal if there was one. The concierge staff and poolside waiting staff in the hotels had the lowest maintenance uniform in the world – a pair of shorts only. This made our hospitality desk duties much more interesting than in hotels where staff wear clothes.

So, after debating it for oh, three seconds and jumping around the room a little, we emailed back straight away to tell her YES, YES, YES!

That 'wow' feeling reared its head again when the sun went down each evening. The neighbouring island of Mo'orea was visible from most hotels, engulfed in the prettiest and pinkest of sunsets. With a Mai Tai in hand and the UK a million miles away, the still and calm beauty of this remote gem was all-encompassing.

We couldn't really complain about the lack of downtime we had on the island, because in our free week we were sent to Auckland and Sydney

MARITIME MEMORIES

with Nigel Lingard
(Non-Executive Director, ROL Cruise)

OUR RATHER VARIED MIX OF TRIPS THIS YEAR SAW US DRIVING DOWN TO SOUTHERN ITALY IN JUNE – ALTHOUGH WE STILL INCLUDED A COUPLE OF NIGHTS AT SEA ON THE STENA LINE SERVICE TO HOEK VAN HOLLAND.

The route south closely followed the Rhine Valley from Holland down through Germany, including a spectacular bridge over the Mosel River. This is the heart of river cruising territory, and the mix of beautiful scenery with historic cities clearly showed why river cruise itineraries are such firm favourites, especially with the new generation of glamorous vessels in service. We're very tempted by the idea of a long voyage in central Europe, with the Rhine/Danube canal making even the whole North Sea to Black Sea journey a possibility. (See pages 38-39 Emerald Waterways).

In Italy our destination was Sorrento, clinging to the cliffs of the fabulous Amalfi Coast. The UK's Institute of Travel and Tourism held their annual conference at the Sorrento Hilton resort, where I was able to meet with many of our cruise industry colleagues. The summer season was well under way, and I saw ships from Costa, MSC, Regent Seven Seas Cruises® and Seabourn all in the bay. Perhaps the most romantic sight was a Star Clippers vessel coming into Positano bay under full sail – certainly a stylish way to arrive in an iconic destination! (See pages 28-29 Star Clipper).

One afternoon I saw the gardens of our hotel being set up for a dinner that was clearly going to be a posh event. All was revealed towards sunset as coaches arrived bearing guests of Azamara Club Cruises® enjoying one of their signature "AzAmazing" gala evenings. Greeted by opera singers, entertained by dancers, served fine food and wines, this seemed like all that a dream holiday should offer!

Looking ahead, I see that many early 2019 programmes are already on offer; world cruises in particular. When we first operated full world cruises at Fred. Olsen, it was fascinating to see loyal guests competing with one another to secure their favourite suites, and even with many more ships in operation today there is still a limited supply of suites and outside single accommodation – hence the flurry of very early bookings.

Sonja and I once enjoyed a memorable world cruise sector around Australasia where we entertained the Ocean's Club Members to dinner in the revolving restaurant atop Sydney's telecom tower – what a super evening. In our hall hangs a photo of us on the bridge of Balmoral, with Queen Victoria sailing past Sydney Opera House in the background – the stuff of dreams! (See pages 16-17 Fred. Olsen and pages 6-7 Cunard).

Hoping you are fulfilling your travel dreams this summer...

Inside the new-look Black Watch

It's dinner time on Fred. Olsen Cruise Lines' Black Watch and I've just ordered a rib-eye steak in the ship's speciality restaurant. Yes you read that correctly. A speciality restaurant on Black Watch.

It was added during a refit late last year that has given this much-loved grand dame of the high seas a whole new lease of life.

Those familiar with the ship will remember the large Braemar Lounge bar had a 'courtyard' off to one side. Well the bar has been renamed the Morning Light Pub and the courtyard has gone, replaced with The Black Watch Room, a self-contained surf-and-turf restaurant with its own galley.

I have sailed on Black Watch a couple of times over the past few years and found the lack of dining choice to be a downside so it's a great addition, and much needed if Fred. Olsen is to attract a new generation of cruisers who, like myself, have grown up sailing on ships where there is more than just the buffet as an alternative to eating in the main dining room each night.

My steak was so good, tasty and cooked just as I like it, that I would happily have eaten there each evening (chicken, lamb and seafood are also on the menu but no vegetarian dish, which is a bit of an oversight these days – even in a steakhouse).

It costs an extra £20 per person to eat there, which I noticed put a few people off – a shame as it's good value and I'm sure if they had tried it they would not have been disappointed.

On chilly days the restaurant is used as a lunchtime alternative to the poolside grill and then the food is free. The menu is small but varied – burgers, chicken kebabs and even a ploughman's, which was, but with no hunks of bread or pickled onions it lacked a little authenticity!

Most other changes were cosmetic but have dragged Black Watch into the modern world. Out go the old-fashioned dowdy furnishings and in come light bright colour schemes. Glentanar, the main dining room, looks a picture in its new light blue and yellow livery, likewise the show lounge, which has a smart blue-and-beige colour scheme.

The redecorated cabins have new interactive TV's with a huge range of free-to-watch built-in movies and music. In the Lido Lounge, the entire aft-facing glass wall now opens up to bring the outside in. On a sunny day – and there were a couple of them on my cruise along the Kiel Canal and Elbe and Weser Rivers in Germany – it was a

...a refit late last year has given this much-loved grand dame of the high seas a whole new lease of life.

The Black Watch Room

glorious place to sit and enjoy the views.

Finally, remember the plastic 'garden' at one end of the Garden Café self-service? It had a bizarre frog that I think was supposed to be croaking. Well I'm pleased to say it and the garden have gone and in celebration the room has been refurbished and renamed Brigadoon. It looks nice but is let down by the ancient and very cramped semi-circular servery in the centre of the room. Something to consider for the next refurb I think.

Land of the Rising Sun

I am always asked whether there is anywhere in the world I haven't been. The answer is yes. And I can even tell you the two countries that are top of my must-go list. New Zealand and Japan.

Actually I did go to Japan once. I landed at Osaka airport and had to find my way to the port to join Regent's ship Seven Seas Voyager®. What an experience!

Osaka, Japan

My Japanese is pretty poor (well non-existent if I'm honest) but I had no idea that the Japanese – in Osaka anyway – don't speak English.

The lady at the information desk at the airport pointed me towards the bus stops but I had no idea which to take and the ticket machines were only in Japanese.

So I decided to take a taxi. Unfortunately the drivers didn't speak English and my attempts at sign language only served to draw a crowd of nodding and smiling locals.

Back to the buses. Finally I found a man with enough English to tell me which bus I needed and to buy me a ticket. If my memory serves it cost all of £1. He put my bag in one queue, stood me in another and I waited for the bus. He bowed as it arrived and then again as it set off.

Of course I also had no idea where to get off. After about 30 minutes of peering through high rise buildings for anything that looked like a ship, he turned right at a junction and there ahead of me was Seven Seas Voyager®.

I walked on, checked in and was informed that due to tidal problems the following day's stay in Osaka was cancelled and we would be setting sail at 3am that night, just 12 hours after I landed!

Since then Japan has become the go-to place for cruisers – and no wonder. You experience the fascinating and very different culture with none of the language worries. I see Regent is back there in April 2019, sailing from Tokyo to Alaska, a place that is equally fascinating but for completely different reasons. Have a word with one of ROL's consultants if you want to know more.

INTRODUCING THE ICONIC VENICE SIMPLON-ORIENT-EXPRESS

From the 1920s to the '30s the carriages of the Venice Simplon-Orient-Express train played a significant role in the golden age of travel. Today, every carriage has been lovingly restored to its former glory, recreating one of the finest luxury experiences the world has ever known.

Exceptional European cuisine is freshly prepared in the train's kitchen by Executive Chef Christian Bodiguel and his skilled team. Enjoy the unique ambience of each of the three beautifully restored restaurant cars and at the heart of the train, the stylish Bar Car '3674' offers a welcoming environment in which to relax over cocktails or coffee.

CHAMPAGNE BAR

Sample the finest champagnes in the exclusive Champagne bar. Art Deco interiors and Lalique glassware conjure the romance and glamour of the 1920s. Vintages include Taittinger, Laurent Perrier Rosé and Louis Roederer Cristal, perfectly chilled and served in glimmering crystal.

Tempura Prawns

Serves 6-8
Prep 30 mins
Cook 10-30 mins

Ingredients

For the batter

- 75g/2½ oz cornflour
- 75g/2½ oz plain flour
- 1 free-range egg, lightly beaten
- 188ml/6½ fl oz beer

For the prawn tempura

- Vegetable oil, for deep-frying
- 50g/2 oz plain flour
- 1.5kg/3lb 5 oz uncooked king prawns, shells and veins removed
- Soy sauce, to serve

Method

- For the batter, sift the cornflour and flour together into a medium sized bowl.
- Make a well in the centre and add the egg and beer. Whisk from the centre outwards, until just combined (it is okay if the batter is a little lumpy). Allow the batter to stand for a few minutes in a cool place.
- Heat the oil in a deep heavy-bottomed pan until a breadcrumb sizzles and turns brown when dropped into it. (CAUTION: hot oil can be dangerous. Do not leave unattended).
- Place the flour onto a plate and dredge the prawns into it to cover well. Dip the prawns into the batter and carefully add to the hot oil. Deep-fry in batches for 2-3 minutes, or until crisp and golden.
- Carefully remove with a slotted spoon and drain on kitchen paper.
- Serve in bowls with a bowl of soy sauce for dipping.
